

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND HUMANITIES

1102 Francis Scott Key Hall
Phone: 301-405-2088
<http://arhu.umd.edu>

Dean: Stephanie Shonekan, Ph.D.

The College of Arts and Humanities embraces a heterogeneous group of disciplines that study human experience, thought, expression and creativity. All value the development of critical thinking, fluent expression in writing and speech, sensitivity to ethical and aesthetic issues, and a complex understanding of history, culture, community, belonging, and social justice in our society. These skills develop transformative thinkers. Departments and programs in Arts and Humanities prize vigorous intellectual debate in a diverse community. While they have strong individual identities, they are also involved in interdisciplinary studies. Thus students will find, for example, courses in the Department of History that examine the medical humanities, courses in the Department of English that adopt feminist perspectives, courses in the Department of Classics that connect contemporary life to antiquity, courses in the Department of Philosophy that embrace economic and political thought and consider the impact of artificial intelligence, and courses in the Department of Art that integrate computer science. Additionally, the School of Languages, Literatures, and Cultures offers courses that challenge students to connect global languages, culture, theory, and experiential learning, and it collaborates with the Department of English to offer courses in film production, and with the Department of Communication to offer courses in public service interpretation and translation.

These ways of thinking inspire and challenge students to create meaningful futures. ARHU academic and career advisors help students navigate their college journey so they can discover their passion, develop their academic plan and infuse their UMD experience with internships, engaged research with faculty, career explorations and study abroad. ARHU sponsors study abroad programs in Cuba, France, Germany, Italy, Jordan, Morocco, Panama, Puerto Rico, Spain, Taiwan, Trinidad and Tobago, and the United Kingdom, including the Arts and Humanities in London Program. Students have unparalleled opportunities to apply theory to practice in internship sites, museums, libraries, theaters, law firms, corporate offices and the federal and Maryland state government in the Prince George's County-Washington, DC-Baltimore-Annapolis area. In other words, to Be WORLDWIDE in every sense.

Further examples of the special opportunities available to students in this richly variegated college include an exceptional visual resource center in Art History and Archaeology, the David C. Driskell Center for the Study of Visual Arts and Culture of African Americans and the African Diaspora, the English Department's BookLab makerspace, and the School of Languages, Literatures, and Culture's Center for Innovation in Teaching and Learning Media Classroom. Additionally, the educational vistas open to students in the School of Music and the School of Theatre, Dance, and Performance Studies are enhanced enormously by the Clarice Smith Center for the Performing Arts, which houses those departments. Students may also participate in one of the college's five living-learning programs: Honors Humanities, College Park Scholars-Arts, Design Cultures & Creativity, Jiménez-Porter Writers' House, and Language House.

Admission Requirements

Freshmen and transfer students interested in applying for admission should refer to the general university admissions information provided in the catalog. Admission to the college's School of Music is a two-step process: undergraduate applicants must apply to both the Office of Undergraduate Admissions and to the School of Music. Visit <http://music.umd.edu/admissions/> for information. Further, students wishing to major in creative or performing arts are encouraged to seek training in the skills associated with such an area prior to matriculation. Applicants to these programs may be required to audition or submit a portfolio as a part of the admission requirements. For more information about the college's academic programs, please contact arhu-admit@umd.edu or 301-405-2108.

COLLEGE REQUIREMENTS

Major Requirements

- All students must complete a program of study consisting of a major (a field of concentration) and sometimes supporting courses as specified by one of the academic units of the college. No program of study shall require in excess of 60 semester hours.
- A major shall consist, in addition to the lower-division departmental prerequisites, of 24 to 40 hours, at least 12 of which must be in courses numbered 3xx or 4xx and at least 12 of which must be taken at the University of Maryland, College Park.
- A major program sometimes requires a secondary field of concentration (supporting courses). The nature and number of these courses are determined by the major department.
- No grade lower than "C-" may be used to fulfill major or supporting course requirements. No course for the major or support module may be taken Pass-Fail.
- Students must earn at least a 2.0 cumulative GPA to graduate from the University of Maryland.
- An overall GPA of 2.0 in the major is required for graduation.
- Students should consult the unit in which they will major for specific details; certain units have mandatory advising.
- Students must complete the World Language Placement (<https://arhu.umd.edu/academics/world-language-placement>) (<https://arhu.umd.edu/academics/world-language-placement/>) prior to adding a major in the College of Arts and Humanities unless the student has fulfilled the required language prerequisites. Students who enter the university as Arts and Humanities majors must take the placement by the end of their first semester on campus.

Bachelor of Music students are exempt from taking the world language placement. For more information about Bachelor of Music requirements, please see <http://music.umd.edu>.

Graduation Requirements

To graduate, all students must earn at least 120 credits and at least a 2.0 cumulative GPA. Additionally, students must complete College of Arts and Humanities requirements.

The following college requirements apply only to students earning Bachelor of Arts degrees from the College of Arts and Humanities. These requirements are in addition to or in fulfillment of campus and departmental requirements. For information concerning the Bachelor of Music in the School of Music, students should consult a Music advisor.

Students who double major in ARHU and another college on campus must complete the ARHU Global Engagement requirement and 39 hours of 3xx or 4xx-level credit.

All Arts and Humanities first-year students (excluding students in a two-year living-learning program) must take ARHU158, Explorations in the Arts and Humanities, during their first semester on campus.

Distribution: To encourage advanced mastery of material, a minimum of 39 of the total of 120 semester hours must be 3xx-4xx level work.

For more information about the CORE program, please visit <http://ugst.umd.edu/core/>.

For more information about the General Education program, please visit <http://gened.umd.edu>.

The Global Engagement Requirement

To expand ARHU students' understanding of other cultures and languages in an increasingly global society, ARHU students must complete the "Global Engagement Requirement" (GE requirement). Learning another language produces deep knowledge of cultural and linguistic differences while opening pathways for common understanding.

Students who are proficient in a world language other than English will have the opportunity to demonstrate that in order to fulfill the GE requirement. Students who earn a Seal of Biliteracy through the State of Maryland will automatically fulfill the requirement. Students who earn a Seal of Biliteracy through another state might be eligible to fulfill the requirement based on their proficiency score; they will need to provide the College of Arts and Humanities Office of Undergraduate Education (<https://arhu.umd.edu/academics/advising/>) an official score report of their proficiency rating showing Intermediate-High or above. Students who are native speakers will be able to take the World Language Placement in a proctored setting to complete the requirement. Students whose native language is not offered at UMD will also have the opportunity to demonstrate proficiency through an outside agency, either ACTFL or Avant.

Students who need to complete the GE requirement can do so in one of three ways:

Option 1: Study of a World Language

Requirement: Students will take world language coursework at UMD according to their score on the World Language Placement. Please consult the ARHU website or an ARHU advisor for a list of the approved course sequences.

All courses in the sequence can be taken under the Pass-Fail grading method (standard registration deadlines and policies will apply). Notes: (a) First semester students and students on academic probation/dismissal are not eligible to take classes under the Pass-Fail grading method. (b) Students pursuing a major or minor in a language cannot take a class to be applied to the major/minor under the Pass-Fail grading method.

Options:

1. Students can take courses to the designated level of one language (i.e. GERS103 and GERS203).
2. Students can take one level of two different languages (i.e. ARAB101 and FREN103).

Option 2: Cultural Immersion through Study Abroad

Requirement: Students will participate in a semester-long study abroad experience in a country where English is not the primary language. A learning contract is required prior to departure.

The study abroad experience must include:

1. At least the first year/elementary level language of the host country before or during the experience (or equivalent as determined by the ARHU World Language Placement policy);
2. A reflection component that will challenge students to assess their pre-departure, in-country and post-study abroad experience;
3. Depending on the location, students will need to participate in one of the following pre-approved engagement experiences:
 - a. Internship (45 hours on site during the semester abroad)
 - b. Service Learning (45 hours of participation during the semester abroad)
 - c. A living situation involving daily interaction with host nationals during the term (e.g., a pre-approved home stay with a host national family)
 - d. Completion of a series of ELMS modules throughout the study abroad experience
 - e. Other - an engagement experience approved in advance of departure

NOTE: Past study abroad experiences will not be considered retroactively.

Option 3: Individually-designed Engagement Experience

Requirement: Students may also create an individually-designed experience that achieves the learning outcomes of the Global Engagement requirement.

This option must include at least a first year/elementary level language course before or during the experience (or equivalent as determined by the ARHU World Language Placement policy).

Options:

1. A pre-approved short- or long-term study abroad program that has been deemed appropriate for inclusion in this option by ARHU in conjunction with the Education Abroad Office (a learning contract is required prior to departure). Students proposing study abroad in an English-speaking country must choose to study a language that has significance to the historical or current culture of the host country (i.e. studying Gaelic in Scotland), in addition to finding an appropriate engagement activity where the language is emphasized. Students will need to research and discuss the intersection of the chosen language and culture in their learning contract.

2. Participation in/completion of the UMD Global Fellows Program.

For more information, please see an advisor in the ARHU Office of Undergraduate Education, call 301-405-2108, or visit <https://arhu.umd.edu/academics/advising/global-engagement/>.

ADVISING

First-semester first-year students and new transfer students have advisors in the College of Arts and Humanities, Office of Undergraduate Education (301-405-2108) who assist them in the selection of courses. Students must see an advisor in their department for assistance in the selection of courses for the major. All first-semester students (both first-years and transfers), students who have completed 45-55 credits, and students who have completed 86-100 credits have mandatory advising with both the college and the department. For further information about advising, students should call the ARHU Office of Undergraduate Education, 301-405-2108.

Secondary Education Teacher Certification

A student interested in a career as a secondary education teacher in a subject represented in this college is encouraged to speak with an advisor in the College of Education Office of Student Services (1204 Benjamin Building) to discuss the different pathways available for certification. The College of Education offers programs that lead to certification for grades PreK-12 in Studio Art and World Language (Chinese, French, German, Italian, Russian, Spanish), and grades 7-12 in English and Social Studies (History). Degree pathways that lead to certification include the following:

1. An undergraduate double major in the content area and secondary education,
2. The five-year integrated master's program, which allows for the content major as an undergraduate degree and completion of certification and graduate degree requirements in a fifth year, or
3. The one-year intensive master's plus certification program.

OPPORTUNITIES

Internships

Most departments within Arts and Humanities have well-established internship options. For more information on internships taken for academic credit toward their major, students should contact their departmental academic advisor. Internship credit is also available directly through the college for students who have fewer than 60 credits, students who are first semester students at UMD, students who have already completed an internship in their major or would like to explore an area outside their major, students who are engaging in research experiences or students who are doing remote internships or interning in a legislative environment. Typically, students must have a 2.5 GPA. They need to complete an application process and the experience usually lasts for a full semester or over the summer. Students must be enrolled for the internship during the semester in which they intern. Retroactive credit and credit for continuing internships will not be awarded. Internships are not considered to be a "credit for work" experience. In addition to participating in the on-site or remote experience, students will also fulfill an academic component. Students are eligible to be paid at their internship and still earn academic credit. For assistance in locating an internship, connect with the University Career Center at ARHU. Visit <http://arhu.umd.edu/careers/> for more information about appointment scheduling and career programs.

Living-Learning Programs

Honors Humanities

0111 Anne Arundel Hall
Phone: 301-405-1537
hhum@umd.edu
<http://honorshumanities.umd.edu>

Associate Director: Sarah Humud, Ph.D.

Entering freshmen participate by invitation in Honors Humanities, a two-year living-learning program at the University of Maryland. Honors Humanities is a prestigious undergraduate program for academically talented students who come from majors across campus. These students share a passion for the arts and humanities and desire both a well-rounded education and a competitive edge on the job market. The program is organized around a diverse and interdisciplinary curriculum. It culminates in an independent research, service or creative project (the "Keystone Project") that a student designs and executes with the guidance of a faculty mentor. Honors Humanities provides students with engaging classes, fun extracurricular activities, life-long friendships, a lively home in Anne Arundel Hall, and opportunities to take advantage of the intellectual, social, and cultural riches of the Washington, D.C. region. Upon completion of the program, students earn an Honors Humanities citation, and this award is recorded on their university transcripts.

College Park Scholars-Arts

1110 Bel Air Hall
Phone: 301-405-0522
<http://scholars.umd.edu>

Director: Harold Burgess

The College Park Scholars Arts Program, sponsored by the College of Arts and Humanities and Undergraduate Studies, is a community of diverse, spirited and talented individuals from a range of academic disciplines. No matter one's major, area of artistic interest, or skill level, as a member of our community, students will be challenged to strengthen their personal artistic skill set, experiment with new and different art forms, and gain a deeper understanding of the value of the arts in our personal and collective lives.

Aligned with the campus-wide Arts For All initiative, we empower students to build meaningful connections across a broad spectrum of arts and culture at the University of Maryland and beyond. Students benefit from opportunities to learn outside the classroom from professional guest artist-led workshops to attending performances and exhibitions presented by cultural institutions including the Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center, neighborhood art institutions such as Pyramid Atlantic and renowned art museums including the Smithsonian Institute. Through personal and collaborative art-making experiences, students learn professional practices of the arts including: research, creative problem solving/ideation/iteration/refinement, critique, curation, and professional writing and presentation skills.

Jiménez-Porter Writers' House

Queen Anne's Hall
Phone: 301-405-0671
JPWritersHouse@umd.edu

<http://writershouse.umd.edu>

Director: Ross Angelella

The Jiménez-Porter Writers' House (JPWH) is the only living-learning program in the country dedicated exclusively to creative writing—and open to students of all majors and all years. Located in Queen Anne's Hall, JPWH serves as a vibrant literary center on campus, with a focus on cross-cultural approaches to storytelling. Students live in a close-knit community of peers who share a passion for writing fiction, poetry, plays, and screenplays. They meet with visiting writers, publish a literary magazine, attend special readings and colloquia, take part in an annual literary festival, and receive transcript notation upon successful completion of the program. The two-year curriculum includes one 1-credit gateway course, two 1-credit workshops, and a 3-credit class in the first year, followed by a 3-credit advanced workshop and 3-credit capstone seminar in the second year. Class sizes are small, often include one-on-one faculty advising, and encourage students to explore different genres. With 50 to 60 students living and writing together each year, the Writers' House offers a strong, diverse, and supportive creative community. Applications can be submitted at <http://apply.arhu.umd.edu>, or by visiting <http://writershouse.umd.edu>. The fall deadline is December 1; the spring deadline (for current UMD students) is March 1. Summer applications are considered on a rolling basis.

Design Cultures & Creativity (DCC) is an Honors College living-learning program that takes creativity seriously as an impulse, an intentional practice, and a mechanism of survival. We aim to offer courses, resources, and opportunities to help students emerge from university not only with interesting things to say about the world, but also the imagination, tools, habits, and confidence to build new ones. Situated at the productive collision of arts and technology, DCC fosters an open, collaborative, and social environment that encourages students to explore relationships between design, culture, and creativity and confront the world with new, innovative, and groundbreaking ideas for a brighter, safer tomorrow for all. We are passionate about emerging technologies and their impact on the world and its people and, even more importantly, how our designs can make our worlds a better place for humans and all other living things to thrive. DCC students are innovative thinkers and makers who engage in research and collaborative projects that engage issues pertaining to identity, connectivity, social justice, art, design, and all things creative in an era when digital tools and media link us on a scale unprecedented in human history.

Language House

<http://sllc.umd.edu/special-programs/language-house/>

Program Director: Marilyn Matar, Ph.D.

The Language House Immersion Program, established as the pioneering living-learning initiative at the University of Maryland, welcomes students from all majors wishing to immerse themselves in the study of languages and cultures. The program features eleven language clusters: Arabic, Chinese, French, German, Hebrew, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Persian,

Russian, and Spanish. Participants reside in St. Mary's Hall apartments alongside other members of their cluster, committing to exclusively use their target language and maintain an immersive environment through daily activities, studies, and social interactions at the Language House (LH).

In this immersive setting, each language cluster collaborates with a native-speaking mentor who organizes interactive cluster activities, including field trips, cooking sessions, film or game nights, and interviews with native speakers, enabling students to explore various facets of the target language and cultures. Additionally, Faculty Liaisons from the School of Languages, Literatures, and Cultures (SLLC) engage with students in each language cluster.

LH students participate in the SLLC329 Language House Immersion course, which accounts for their engagement in the program and cluster activities. They must also enroll in at least one 3-credit course aligned with their language of study within the SLLC during each semester of their program participation. Furthermore, LH residents participate in events, such as intercultural lectures, international film series, language and career activities, and weekly conversation tables. These activities contribute to fostering a dynamic and interactive environment, enriching the overall global LH experience.

Students who successfully fulfill the LH requirements are eligible to receive the "Badge in Language and Culture Immersion", which acknowledges and validates their immersive experiences within the program and beyond.

College Honors Program

Most departments in the College of Arts and Humanities offer Departmental Honors Programs (DHP). DHPs are upper-division programs within the individual academic units. Students enrolled in Departmental Honors work independently with faculty members in subjects of special interest, develop and deepen their research skills, and, in the process, earn an even stronger degree. Students must have a cumulative GPA of at least 3.0 to be admitted. For further information about individual Departmental Honors Programs and policies, consult with departmental advisors.

AADHum Team: Andrew W. Smith, Alice Bi, Christin Washington, Cassandra Hradil, Grace Babukiika, Jeffrey Moro, Lisa Osei, Kola Heyward-Rotimi, Lillian-Yvonne Bertram, Marisa Parham, and Trevor Muñoz, director of MITH

AADHum is a research and humanities design collaborative that focuses both on digital studies- producing scholarship that evaluates and extends investigation into the histories and impacts of digital technologies on Black lifeworlds, and also Black digital humanities- designing and developing projects that actively name Blackness in the production and implementation of digital or experimental technologies. In our support of Black Study at Maryland and beyond, we foster digital and experimental scholarly publishing and creative-making at all levels. Our public research programming includes microgrant opportunities for undergraduate students, residencies for grad students, senior scholars, and collaborators, and workshops and depth-conversations for all interested folks at UMD, in our local communities, and beyond.

Director: Jordana M. Saggese, Ph.D.

The Driskell Center is a creative incubator dedicated to a world where Black artists exist at its center. We invite inquiry, experimentation, and dialogue to reexamine histories and shape shared futures. Founded in 2001 to honor the legacy of David C. Driskell (1931-2020) —an artist, curator, and UMD Distinguished Professor of Art, the Center is a vital resource at the University of Maryland; we provide campus and global communities with access to one of the foremost collections of Black art and related archival materials—2,000 artworks wide and 50,000 archival objects deep. Our combined art collections, archives, and library capture the largely untold story of the extraordinary work of Black artists throughout American art history. Appreciating and engaging with the influential contributions of renowned Black artists and scholars— including Faith Ringgold, Alonzo Davis, Michael D. Harris, and David C. Driskell, among others—inspires the reassessment of prevalent narratives and the shaping of collective futures. Our programming, exhibitions, internships, and fellowships encourage active learning and engagement with these assets, advancing individuals in their unique journeys and increasing visibility and opportunity for past, present, and future Black artists.

Director: Ruth Enid Zambrana, Ph.D., Distinguished University Professor

The Consortium on Race, Gender and Ethnicity (CRGE), a university-wide, interdisciplinary research organization and pedagogic/mentoring unit, was founded in 1998 by pioneering faculty Dr. Bonnie Thornton Dill and cofounder Dr. Ruth Enid Zambrana who developed a critical area of intersectional scholarship in the contemporary academy. CRGE is the first national interdisciplinary and intersectional research center of its kind and is at the forefront of advancing equity, inclusion, intersectional qualitative, and mixed-methods research on campus and across the nation. We are uniquely focused on intersectional research and uplifting and mentoring traditionally and historically underrepresented minority (URM) and other disadvantaged students of color and early career faculty.

Why are we important to the UMD campus?

- Building human capital and promoting equity is at the core of our mission and programmatic activities.
- Interdisciplinary scholarship and collaboration are the driving forces of our research-building efforts.
- Qualitative and mixed methodologies form a central core of our expertise.
- Combining efforts with other units enhances the academic pathways of students and faculty, particularly URM.

CRGE has three unique dimensions that distinguish it from other campus units: focus on the intersections of race, ethnicity, gender, class and other dimensions of inequality as they shape the construction and representation of identities, behavior and complex social relations; commitment to qualitative research interests that illustrate the lived experiences of race/ethnic groups and showcase scholars' innovative research methodologies and interdisciplinary collaborations; and engagement in the research pathways of students and faculty to contribute to the next generation of historically and traditionally underrepresented and disadvantaged students of color, scholars and leaders.

Our intersectional scholarship examines the lived experiences of URM and other social and economically disadvantaged populations in public health, medicine, urban and rural low-income communities, and higher education sectors. Our work has investigated the role of mentoring of URM groups and their experiences in the pathway from college through early-career faculty and the role of discriminatory institutional practices on URM faculty health and well-being. Programming seeks to apply effective, equitable, and responsive practices to increase the retention and promotion of URM students and faculty. We sponsor intersectional dissertation research seed grants in partnership with the Office of Graduate Diversity and Inclusion (OGDI), and conduct a national summer Intersectional Qualitative Research Methods Institute (IQRMI) (for early-career faculty on the UMD campus and cosponsor one for advanced graduate students at University of Texas at Austin). CRGE has university-wide intersectional faculty affiliates who are committed to social justice and are active in the community and nationwide efforts to advance gender, race, and ethnic relations through intersectional research.

As a first-class intersectional scholarship-driven center, CRGE is dedicated to understanding the intersections of inequality, inequity and social justice and serves as a national example of a thriving and inclusive environment for critically engaged scholars whose research informs solutions to significant social and economic policy concerns.
