

VIDEO PRODUCTION AND DOCUMENTARY FILMMAKING MINOR

Program Director: Alexander Pyles

The Video Production and Documentary Filmmaking minor helps students develop practical skills and understand the legal and ethical issues inherent in visual media production and independent filmmaking. Students get hands-on experience with camera and audio equipment, learn visual storytelling and editing techniques and work individually and in teams to create compelling digital content.

Program Learning Outcomes

1. Understand the ethical guidelines and practices that govern media production and the legal implications and considerations that inform that work.
2. Demonstrate the ability to apply appropriate tools and technology, including the creation and editing of video and other images.
3. Understand the importance of deadlines and timelines in video production.
